Movement: Players can freely move across a map in a variety of directions using the L2 and R2 buttons. While in free mode, players can freely move around by using the D-pad. When in obstacle mode ("double point"), the player is forced to move in the direction indicated by the D-pad. Players must also keep in mind that they can only go in 3D space and can not move in 1D or 2D spaces. Combat: Players can perform the following actions: Movement - When in combat, pressing "X" causes the player to move forward in their current direction. Locking weapons - This action locks the player's weapon so that all hostile monsters may be killed easily, while the player is unable to run away or perform any other actions. Unlocking weapons - This action unlocks the player's weapon. If the weapon is currently locked, a prompt will be displayed to the player. If the weapon is already unlocked, the prompt will simply be displayed. Attack - This action performs a basic attack using the weapon equipped to the player's hand. A weapon that is currently held in the active hand will be automatically equipped when attacked. A weapon that is in the player's hands will be equipped when attacked by a weapon of the same type. However, weapons that are set to magic are not compatible with weapons that are set to attack. Stand to defend - This action locks the player's weapon to their body so that they are protected during combat. The player is unable to run or perform any other actions. The player can change the defense mode by pressing the "Y" button. Change weapons - This action allows the player to equip a weapon to their hand that is not currently being used. What's new:

is a Japanese role-playing video game developed by Kadokawa Games and originally published by the now defunct ATLUS for the PlayStation 2 in 2004, and later ported to the PSP, PlayStation 3, PlayStation 4, Xbox 360, Xbox One, Nintendo 3DS, and Nintendo Switch. A visual novel spin-off titled Muv-

Luv AB, creating the series Mother (母) and Son (子 (母子)), was released for the GameCube on June 26, 2006. It is the third game in the Muv-Luv series and the first female-oriented visual novel of the franchise, albeit with different casts of characters and settings than the other visual novels in the series. The story follows the heroine Motoharu Ibuki and her boyfriend, who are racing to get into the top-tier musical group Idolo Academy, while the two pieces of the prophecy reveal themselves to each of them, resulting in a personal transformation in each of the pair. The gameplay incorporates several RPG elements, such as the character and equipment design. The first Muv-Luv game, Muv-Luv Alternative: Total Eclipse, was generally well received by critics. Muv-Luv Alternative CODEX, and its various ports are the only full-fledged Muv-Luv games that received positive reception so far. Generally, the first game in the Muv-Luv series, Muv-Luv Alternative: Total Eclipse, was more focused on traditional visual novel settings in contrast to the second game, although the setting of the latter does refer to its predecessor. Muv-Luv Alternative CODEX received more favourable criticism for its gameplay elements, and is the only visual novel in the Muv-Luv series that does not feature eroge or hentai content. The characters and plots of Muv-Luv Alternative CODEX were highly influenced from the series Muv-Luv Alternative. Plot The plot of Muv-Luv Alternative CODEX follows both Motoharu Ibuki and her boyfriend Motoki Takamiya, who work together to participate in the Idol Planet, an event to select contestants and candidates for the five top-tier music groups. This is a tough competition, as each group consists of male singers except for the last two groups, which are mixed, with at least one boy and one girl. Motoharu works for the Idolo Music Company and is entered in Idolo Academy for reasons that
