The Strategic Mind: Blitzkrieg: Game is a game of strategy, tactics, and simple but fast paced action. The objectives of this game is to win by ending the game with the most of your troops and vehicles. The players needs to shoot the enemy before he can shoot you. Any soldier of Panzer Corps will remember the first time being shot and then being able to shoot back! The game itself starts you out in an extremely small tank or a plane. The scale gets larger as you advance onto the map and defeat your enemies and gain experience. Each unit that is available in the game has their own stats and helps to determine how well they do in battle. For example, the German supply trucks are high output but have lower health. A medium tank will have medium health, but will do more damage. The game includes a variety of vehicles and units that each has their own sets of bonuses and strengths and weaknesses. As you defeat enemies you are gaining experience that helps you become better and better over time. Each unit will gain experience towards gaining more hit points and becoming stronger. Make sure to use your experience to help you push out of the map. As each unit is in the battle the game does a dice roll to see how many hits it will do on a given shot. As the dice rolls higher then it will take more damage and lose life slowly. If the dice roll is less than the damage taken then the soldier will live and continue on. If the damage taken is more than the dice roll then the soldier will die and be removed from the map. However, if the soldier is shot and then gets to shoot back, then that will subtract the wound factor and improve the likelihood of a hit. If they shot back and does three hits they will get three shots for their unit. The second part of this game is tactics, or what it really means is strategy. There are a variety of maps in the game ranging from city streets to plains, desert sand, dunes, snow and forests. As the map changes the odds of winning may change. With only a few units and powerful weapons, the Germans can win but with more units and weaker weapons, the Allies can win. The game provides simple rules and each unit has different strengths and weaknesses. Features This game is great for 1 person that wants a quick game, is looking for a quick game, or is looking to move between board games. For those that are looking for something that fits in your collection a bit more,

WATERLOO — For the first time in over a decade, students of the University of Waterloo will begin the academic year with a new vice-provost, vice-provost Mark Kent. For Kent, the new position will be a continuation of his work as a dean at the business school and as director of the Center for Entrepreneurship and Business (CEB) at Waterloo. Currently, he's acting in the role, since an announcement of the official appointment has not yet been made. The start of the academic year is in two weeks, on September 2. "There is nothing in my background, my personal life, my career experience, which is not attached to this university or its business school," Kent said. "I am motivated by what I believe is a need to continue to strengthen and help support the university's direction of entrepreneurship and this role is a vehicle for doing that." Kent started his career at the University of Waterloo in 1994 as an assistant professor in the Faculty of Arts. In 2001, he was named director of CEB. Much of his career has been spent in the development of programs, projects and initiatives supporting the development of campus-based entrepreneurship. As director of CEB, Kent oversaw the creation of the graduate degree in Entrepreneurship and Business. He is responsible for the program's curriculum, faculty and degree requirements. In addition to his work with the program, Kent leads much of the university's focus on entrepreneurship. He's been doing so since the early 2000s. "Since 2008, there has been this university-wide program that works with all of our students to develop their entrepreneurial skills, especially students in the small business program," Kent said. "There is a building awareness of and purpose to making entrepreneurial awareness a part of your experience within this c9d1549cdd

"Jackbox has crafted another fine entry into its party-game series, and while it's nowhere near the masterpiece that was 2014's "You Don't Know Jack," it nonetheless serves its intended purpose well. The main thing that sets this game apart from the pack is that it allows you to pick and choose which game types you want to play, from the selection of boards that you can play. I've played the game in various sessions, where I've made my choices as casually as I get dressed each morning, and have seen a huge range of player behavior." The Jackbox Party Pack 3 more than delivers on the promise of quality made by its predecessors. This year's installment continues to demonstrate that no one makes a better party game.9/10 Destructoid Game "The Jackbox Party Pack 3" Gameplay: "Jackbox has crafted another fine entry into its party-game series, and while it's nowhere near the masterpiece that was 2014's "You Don't Know Jack," it nonetheless serves its intended purpose well. "Though the reviews for this one may vary greatly, I can say that I truly enjoy this game very much. The game is fast, easy to learn, and very enjoyable. The aspect that I really like about this game is that it is a party game, and everyone should have fun with it. I also would really recommend that everyone check it out, as it is a fun, easy game to learn, and some of the jokes can be quite funny. So if you like party games that aren't all that long, and are easy to learn, this one is a great game to try." Community Meta Quick Links About Royal Pack Standard Edition The Jackbox Party Pack is a strategy party game where two to four players take on the roles of members of a fictional radio show to get to the bottom of an imaginary world's problems. Each game is divided into short rounds and each round is composed of a selection of ten gameplay cards. Each card asks players questions that must be answered at the radio station where the game is being played.

What's new:

. Retrograde motion, when a planet goes around the sun in the same direction as the apparent motion of the sun, can cause disruption of life on the planet or in the solar system. A benevolent planet can therefore move us out of the solar system. It's only when the planet exerts the total force at us, like a planet on planet collision course, that we realize we are in real danger. The low point of Uranus' retrograde phase was 1994-1995 when scientists had to recall their spacecraft to earth. The planet crossed the sun briefly on June 22, 1995 giving us the nickname SUN god. We are now approaching the low point of the retrograde cycle. On August 22nd, the planet will be at aphelion. The moment of retrogress, or motion backward, will be on September 10th, when Uranus will be at the last degree of its retrograde phase. The downside of this long, slow motion is that the climactic points of 2014 and 2015 are at minimum distance from us. In some ways the anomaly Uranus creates when it changes in its orientation or moving backward in time can be seen as more real than the "real" planets we observe directly. The motion of the 14 planets are directed from the sun in a particular pattern. Uranus, Neptune and Pluto move in the exact opposite direction to the sun, or retrograde. Based on Kepler data the orbit of Uranus is a result of the beautiful frozen dance of ice and rock; the planets follow a complicated choreography that produces some marvelous objects. In fact, the first thing to know about the distance of a planet, including Pluto, is that they give us material to build such a remarkable dance. As the clocks spin, and so do the planets, we begin to realize we are up in a vast, quiet, solar system. As of 2014 Uranus is twirling in the opposite direction as the other planets (meaning it is spinning on its head), "In terms of the ecliptic, the celestial equator is tilted by 23.5 degrees. And in a nut-shell, Uranus' orbit "flew" backwards, much like a planet on planet collision course." [1] Curious as to the meaning of the word "flew"? See below. When a planet is in retrograde, causing a disruption in the rotation of the solar system, the solar storms are delayed since we are unaware of the Sun
